

Hardin Northern helps Dunkirk

Posted on May 11, 2022

More than 160 Hardin Northern students from grades 7-12 participated in a community cleanup in and around the Village of Dunkirk on Monday. Among the projects (above) was mulching around the Veterans' Memorial tank. The students were asked to do many different service projects and worked in teams, with the cooperation of teachers, to complete the tasks. Students did beautification projects around the trees lining Main Street, while also sweeping the street and picking up debris. Students helped to finish painting the fire hydrants around the village as well as patching roads from an earlier service project. Village Superintendent Todd Hackworth praised the work ethic of the students and their willingness to do whatever was asked of them.
